Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally is a strategy for English local authorities that is the result of collaboration by local authorities and key stakeholders from across the counter fraud landscape. Its production and subsequent implementation is overseen by an independent board, which includes representation from key stakeholders. The board commissioned the drafting and publication of the strategy from the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre.

This strategy is the result of an intensive period of research, surveys, face-to-face meetings and workshops. Local authorities have spoken openly about risks, barriers and what they feel is required to help them improve and continue the fight against fraud and to tackle corruption locally.

With support from:

Foreword by Cllr Claire Kober

Since the last Fighting Fraud Locally Strategy was published in 2011, the landscape has changed considerably for local government. Councils have dealt with unprecedented reductions in funding – up to 40% of central funding over the life of the previous Parliament and further real term reductions announced in the November 2015 Spending Review.

Rather than taking the approach of managing decline, councils have innovated, collaborated and prioritised in order to protect vital services.

Innovation is as important in fighting fraud as any area of council activity to keep ahead of fraudsters and prevent resources being taken away from delivering services to those who need them.

The transfer of welfare benefits fraud investigation staff to the DWP's Single Fraud Investigation Service means that councils need to reconsider how they counter other areas of fraud. The new Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Strategy is timely and should be of great help to councils in developing new approaches.

There are many examples of success but it is worth focussing on the Audit Commission's annual report in October 2014 that reported a 400% increase in right to buy fraud in London; a fact which we in Haringey anticipated over two years ago when the maximum discount available to purchase a home under the right to buy scheme was increased to £100k.

Our Fraud Team in Haringey has been working pro-actively with services across the council since 2013 to investigate potential right to buy fraud. Joining up housing, benefits and fraud teams effectively has meant that we have prevented over 120 cases of right to buy fraud, saving £12m in discounts and retaining the property for use as much needed social housing.

Where we have identified tenancy and benefit fraud alongside the right to buy fraud, we recover the property to help provide homes for those people and families in most need; and we are prosecuting the most serious cases. Secondly, our Benefits Team has been working to make it more difficult for fraud and error to occur in the first place.

Claimants are now asked to periodically resubmit current evidence of their circumstances, especially their income, and long running claims are now reviewed in depth more often, particularly in high risk areas – those where circumstances might be expected to have changed.

We are also making it easier for claimants to tell us of changes in circumstances and reminding them that they need to tell us, and we are looking at sharing data with other agencies. Every pound siphoned off by a fraudster is a pound that cannot be spent on services where they are needed. Councils need to be vigilant.

Councils do have a good record in countering fraud and the strategy contains numerous case studies and examples of successes. Councils also have an excellent record in collaboration with the LGA's improvement team recording more than 350 successful examples of councils working together to save money and improve services, and collaboration to counter and prevent fraud is a theme running through the strategy.

I am happy to endorse this strategy on behalf of the LGA and welcome it as an opportunity for councils to review and further improve their counter fraud work.

Foreword by Marcus Jones MP

Fraudsters cost the local tax payer many millions of pounds each year. Indeed the estimated loss of £2.1bn quoted in this Strategy is felt to be an underestimate of the total cost to local government.

This is of concern as much to central government as it is to councils. The Strategy rightly places an emphasis on council leaders, chief executives and finance directors to provide the local leadership to take action to protect the public purse.

At a time when every penny should be invested in delivering high quality services to local people, tackling fraud head on should be a priority.

The recent figures from the Office of National Statistics show that an increasing amount of fraud is being reported to the police, Cifas and Financial Fraud Action UK.

The risks are clear, councils must ensure they are active in looking for and identifying fraud and embedding a counter fraud culture at the heart of their organisation.

Currently there is a disparity of effort in tackling this kind of criminal activity across the sector, this is a concern. Some invest in dedicated counter fraud activity and some do not, and the Strategy is right to point out that councils should take an 'invest to save' approach.

I know this is not easy, there have been some successes but more councils need to go further. The Government has helped councils, and last year provided an injection of £16m through the Counter Fraud Fund to support a wide range of council led projects across the country.

The challenge is now for local government to build on this investment, share the learning, and raise the bar. A clear message needs to be sent to fraudsters that councils won't put up with fraud of any sort. As the Strategy says – it is about having robust systems in place to prevent fraud occurring in the first place.

To look in the right areas, by taking a risk based approach to identify fraud, and where fraud is found to publicise it widely and use it as deterrent. And councils will be judged by their residents on their results.

I fully believe the onus lies rightly at the top of the organisation to set the tone and culture that councils are serious and won't tolerate fraud, that all parts of the organisation have a job to build fraud resilience into their systems, to actively look for, and where they find it prosecute fraudsters.

I hope and expect this strategy to be the spring board for councils to go further than before.

Executive Summary

Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally is the new counter fraud and corruption strategy for local government. It provides a blueprint for a tougher response to fraud and corruption perpetrated against local authorities. By using this strategy local authorities will develop and maintain a culture in which fraud and corruption are understood to be unacceptable, understand their fraud risk and prevent fraud more effectively, use technology to improve their response, share information and resources more effectively to prevent and detect fraud loss, bring fraudsters account more quickly and efficiently, and improve the recovery of losses.

This strategy is aimed at council leaders, chief executives, finance directors, and all those charged with governance in local authorities. It is produced as part of the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally initiative, a partnership between local authorities and key stakeholders, and succeeds the previous strategy, written in 2011.

Local authorities face a significant fraud challenge. Fraud costs local authorities an estimated £2.1bn a year. Every £1 that a local authority loses to fraud is £1 that it cannot spend on supporting the community. Fraud and corruption are a drain on local authority resources and can lead to reputational damage.

Fraudsters are constantly revising and sharpening their techniques and local authorities need to do the same. There is a clear need for a tougher stance. This includes tackling cross boundary and organised fraud and corruption attempts, as well as addressing new risks.

In addition to the scale of losses, there are further challenges arising from changes in the wider public sector landscape including budget reductions, service remodelling and integration, and government policy changes. Local authorities will need to work with new agencies in a new national counter fraud landscape.

This will offer opportunities to support the National Crime Agency in the fight against organised crime and work with the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre, which has agreed to take on the hosting of Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally, and other leaders in this field. Local authorities reported that they were still encountering barriers to tackling fraud effectively, including incentives, information sharing and powers.

The strategy also addresses the issue of new anti-corruption measures for local authorities and integrates the relevant elements of the government's Anti-Corruption Plan.

In response to these challenges, local authorities will need to continue to follow the principles developed in Fighting Fraud Locally 2011 (FFL):

- Acknowledge: acknowledging and understanding fraud risks and committing support and resource to tackling fraud in order to maintain a robust anti-fraud response.
- Prevent: preventing and detecting more fraud by making better use of information and technology, enhancing fraud controls and processes and developing a more effective anti-fraud culture.
- Pursue: punishing fraudsters and recovering losses by prioritising the use of civil sanctions, developing capability and capacity to investigate fraudsters and developing a more collaborative and supportive law enforcement response.

Local authorities have achieved success by following this approach; however, they now need to respond to an increased threat.

This strategy sets out ways in which local authorities can further develop and enhance their counter fraud response by ensuring that it is comprehensive and effective and by focusing on the key changes that will make the most difference.

Local authorities can ensure that their counter fraud response is comprehensive and effective by considering their performance against each of the six themes that emerged from the research:

- Culture
- Capability
- Capacity
- Competence
- Communication
- Collaboration

“At a time when resources are becoming ever more scarce, all of us involved in delivering local public services are looking at ways of doing more with less. Acknowledging the risk of fraud and committing resources to tackle it, taking steps to prevent fraud and pursuing offenders must be part of the answer. What we have learnt as a consequence of our continuing work is that success in this field depends not just on what you do but how you do it. Having an embedded anti-fraud approach across an organisation is critical to success and by focusing this strategy on the cross cutting themes of culture, capability, capacity, competence, communication, and collaboration will in my view help ensure that an anti-fraud approach becomes integral to the way we work.

Charlie Adan

Chief Executive Babergh and Mid Suffolk

The Companion to this document contains a section on each of these themes, with information on fraud risks, good practice and case studies to assist local authorities in strengthening their response and ensuring that it is fit for purpose.

This strategy also identifies the areas of focus that will make the most difference to local authorities' counter fraud efforts. These are:

- Leadership
- Assessing and understanding the scope of fraud and corruption risks
- Making the business case
- Using resources more effectively
- Collaborating to improve
- Using technology to tackle fraud
- Tackling corruption

Many local authorities have demonstrated that they can tackle fraud innovatively and can collaborate effectively to meet the challenges. Indeed, many have identified that a reduction in fraud can be a source of sizeable savings.

For example:

- Birmingham City Council, working with other agencies, secured a confiscation order against 2 organised fraudsters of £380,000
- The London Borough of Lewisham, working with Lewisham Homes, recouped £74,000 from one internal fraudster
- The Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea, by using data matching techniques to prevent fraud, made savings of £376,000 in the first year, and £250,000 for the following two years.

This strategy has been designed for local authorities by local authorities and other stakeholders. It provides a firm and practical basis to help them to take the next steps in the continuing fight against fraud and corruption.

The strategy:

- Calls upon local authorities to continue to tackle fraud with the dedication they have shown so far and to step up the fight against fraud in a challenging and rapidly changing environment
- Illustrates the financial benefits that can accrue from fighting fraud more effectively
- Calls upon central government to promote counter fraud activity in local authorities by ensuring the right further financial incentives are in place and helping them break down barriers to improvement
- Updates and builds upon Fighting Fraud Locally 2011 in the light of developments such as The Serious and Organised Crime Strategy and the first UK Anti-Corruption Plan
- Sets out a new strategic approach that is designed to feed into other areas of counter fraud and corruption work and support and strengthen the ability of the wider public sector to protect itself from the harm that fraud can cause.

It is now for elected members, chief executives, finance directors, and all those charged with governance to ensure this strategy is adopted and implemented in their local authorities.

Introduction

This strategy document is aimed primarily at elected members, chief executives, finance directors, and those charged with governance in local authorities. A companion document aimed at counter fraud practitioners in local authorities has been produced, which lays out detailed actions for them. The strategy sets out the approach local authorities should take and the main areas of focus over the next three years in order to transform counter fraud and corruption performance, and contains major recommendations for local authorities and other stakeholders.

The strategy is based upon research carried out by the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre.

This consisted of:

- Workshops conducted in York, Birmingham and London with over 90 attendees
- Twelve individual interviews with key stakeholders from the counter fraud landscape including local authority representative groups, the National Anti-Fraud Network, the Home Office and the Audit Commission
- Specific focussed interviews with subject matter experts
- Three regional workshops attended by around 70 practitioners focussed on particular fraud types and barriers
- A workshop focussing on anti-corruption risks
- A survey placed on the website of the Local Authority Investigators Group on fraud risks and barriers
- Desktop research of publications and counter fraud literature, including new legislation. These documents are listed in The Companion.

By following this strategy local government will be better able to protect itself from fraud and corruption and will provide a more effective fraud response.

Our vision is that by 2019:

- There is a culture in which fraud and corruption are unacceptable and everyone plays a part in eradicating them
- By better understanding of risk and using technology local authorities will shut the door to fraudsters who try to access their systems or services
- Local authorities will have invested in sustainable systems to tackle fraud and corruption and will see the results of recovery
- Local authorities will be sharing information more effectively and by using advanced data technology will prevent and detect losses
- Fraudsters will be brought to account quickly and efficiently and losses will be recovered.

Since the first local government counter fraud strategy, Fighting Fraud Locally, was published in 2011, local authorities have made significant progress in tackling fraud by acknowledging and understanding the risks they face and by collaborating, making more use of technology and information sharing to prevent fraud.

In addition, local authorities have made good use of legislation to recover assets and to take action against fraudsters. There are many examples in this document and the companion that demonstrate the efforts and achievements of local authorities despite reductions in resources and a changing enforcement landscape.

Local authorities should be commended for their part in the fight against fraud and other agencies should learn from their good practice. However, the scale of losses demonstrate that more needs to be done. The landscape continues to change and local authorities will need to respond within the context of budget reductions. There is a need to do more with less.

This document is divided into three sections:

Section 1: The Fraud Challenge

Sets out the nature and the scale of fraud losses, the changes to the national and public sector fraud landscape that require a response from local authorities, and the key issues raised by stakeholders.

Section 2: The Strategic Response

Describes the response that is required from local authorities to address the challenges it is facing, identifying the activities necessary in order to achieve the strategic vision.

Section 3: Delivery Plan

Sets out the recommendations and the framework for delivery.

The Companion

This additional document is aimed at counter fraud practitioners in local authorities and taken together with this strategy sets out a comprehensive blueprint for counter fraud and corruption activities that will deliver the vision.

It identifies the most pressing and serious fraud risks and sets out ways of tackling them, as well as identifying the key organisations that local authorities should work with and the roles they play.

Birmingham City Council has invested in creating an anti-fraud culture for some years and a number of examples of its good practice are contained within this document.

At Birmingham City Council, we are committed to protecting the public funds that we are entrusted with. In these times of austerity, the minimisation of losses to fraud and corruption is even more important in ensuring that resources are used for their intended purpose of providing essential services to the citizens of Birmingham.

Through our values, policies and procedures, the council has sought to develop an anti-fraud culture and maintain high ethical standards in its administration of public funds. Anyone who commits, or attempts to commit, fraudulent or corrupt acts against the council, will be held to account in a decisive manner.

The work of our Counter Fraud Team in identifying fraud is invaluable in ensuring that our scarce resources are protected. The development of a sophisticated data analysis capability enables the team not only to detect fraud, but helps our frontline services to prevent it as well. This helps to make sure that the council's services are provided to only those in genuine need and that our valuable resources are directed to where they are needed most".

Mark Rogers

Chief Executive, Birmingham City Council

Section 1: The Fraud Challenge

In compiling the evidence that underpins this strategy it became clear that there are three main areas of concern that necessitate a coordinated response from local authorities:

- The scale of fraud losses
- Changes to the national and public sector counter fraud landscape
- Issues raised directly by stakeholders.

The Scale of Fraud Losses

It is accepted that fraud affects the UK across all sectors and causes significant harm. The last, most reliable and comprehensive set of figures was published by the National Fraud Authority in 2013, and indicates that fraud may be costing the UK £52bn a year.

Within these figures the estimated loss to local authorities totalled £2.1bn. The estimated losses for local authorities in 2013 are broken down in the following by identified fraud losses and hidden fraud losses:

Annual Fraud Indicator 2013

Estimated Local Government Fraud Loss 2013

Fraud Type	Estimated Loss	Fraud Type	Estimated Loss
Housing tenancy fraud	£845m	Blue Badge Scheme misuse	£46m
Procurement fraud	£876m	Grant fraud	£35m
Payroll Fraud	£154m	Pension fraud	£7.1m
Council Tax fraud	£133m

Annual Fraud Indicator 2013

These figures do not take into account the indirect costs of responding to and dealing with fraud and exclude some potentially significant areas of fraud loss.

The Audit Commission's Protecting the Public Purse 2014 identified detected fraud to the value of £188m following a comprehensive survey of local authorities: this was fraud after the event and did not include potential losses.

Local authorities detected 3% fewer cases of fraud than in the previous exercise but the value increased by 6%, which implies larger fraud cases.

It is clear, even allowing for inaccuracies in the measurement of fraud risk and the absence of recent data, that like other sectors of the economy local government is under attack from fraudsters and the scale of losses to local authorities is significant. There are opportunities for local authorities to take action to reduce their losses, and these are discussed in Section 2 of this document.

Changes to the National and Public Sector Counter Fraud Landscape

Since Fighting Fraud Locally was published in 2011, there have been significant changes in the landscape nationally, including areas covering organised fraud and anti-corruption.

The National Response to Serious and Organised Crime

The National Crime Agency was created in October 2013, and in May 2014 published the National Strategic Assessment of Serious and Organised Crime. Organised crime costs the United Kingdom £24bn each year and includes drug trafficking, human trafficking, organised illegal immigration, high value crimes, counterfeiting, organised acquisitive crime and cybercrime.

Serious and organised criminals operate across police force boundaries and in complex ways, and the police require sophisticated capabilities to detect and disrupt their activity. The Government invested in the development of the Regional Organised Crime Unit (ROCU) network to ensure that forces have access to the capabilities they need to tackle these threats. Regional Organised Crime Units provide high end specialist capability, including regional fraud teams, to local forces tackling the threat from serious and organised crime in their region.

Action Fraud is the national reporting point for fraud and also cyber crime. As of April 2014, both Action Fraud and the NFIB are run by the City of London Police, which is the UK's lead force for fraud. This change was made by the Government to ensure that one body was responsible for the whole process of recording and analysing reports of all types of fraud.

Organised crime affects local authorities as well as other organisations. The Government launched a new Serious and Organised Crime Strategy in October 2013. Its aim is to substantially reduce the level of serious and organised crime affecting the UK and its interests. All frauds, including those committed within the context of local government should be reported to Action Fraud, either by calling: 0300 123 2040 or by visiting: www.actionfraud.police.uk/report_fraud.

The National Crime Agency (NCA) leads work against serious and organised crime, coordinating the law enforcement response, ensuring that action against criminals and organised criminal groups is prioritised according to the threat they present.

Police forces will continue to conduct most law enforcement work on serious and organised crime. They should be supported by local organised crime partnerships boards, including local authorities and agencies to ensure all available information and powers are used against this threat.

Local government is not immune from organised fraud. Recent years have seen a number of fraud cases where perpetrators have been part of a larger criminal network. Organised frauds often cross local authority boundaries and investigations tend to be complex, requiring the deployment of specialist resources, such as computer forensics or surveillance capability. Such resources are expensive and expertise needs to be used constantly to maintain effectiveness.

Although organised crime may not immediately seem to be a direct threat to local authorities, many organisations have already been subjected to fraud, money laundering, identity crime, intellectual property crime and theft of assets. Local authorities may be targeted by organised crime, whether to obtain council resources or to fund other activities. Local authorities need to consider how they can protect their employees, communities, businesses and themselves from the threat of organised crime.

Anti-Corruption

On 18 December 2014 the Home Office published the first UK Anti-Corruption Plan. The aim of the plan is to bring about a co-ordinated and collaborative approach, setting out clear actions and priorities. The plan covers both UK and international activities, and includes local government.

Most public officials have probably never been offered a bribe and would feel pretty confident that they could spot the offer. If they don't necessarily think of themselves as totally incorruptible, they often think they can avoid getting entangled in situations where their conduct may be called into question.

However, thinking you don't need help or guidance in knowing what is legal or illegal, or even what is right or wrong, in every circumstance is a risk – a risk that could and should be avoided by getting the most of what help and guidance is available.”

Prof Alan Doig – Visiting Professor,
Centre for Public Services Management,
Liverpool Business School, Liverpool John Moores University

The response to corruption follows the UK's four components of the Serious and Organised Crime Strategy:

- Pursue: prosecuting and disrupting people engaged in serious and organised criminality
- Prevent: preventing people from engaging in serious and organised crime
- Protect: increasing protection against serious and organised crime
- Prepare: reducing the impact of this criminality where it takes place.

The plan sets out the immediate priorities for the government, which are to build a better picture of the threat from corruption, increase protection and strengthen the law enforcement response.

Local authorities are included in a number of areas within the plan as well as within a specific section. There are areas to which they should pay close attention and ensure that they have suitable arrangements in place and that they are up to date on current arrangements. It will require a change in culture and competence.

Local government is targeted by those who wish to corrupt local processes, such as housing or planning, for their own gain; and organised crime groups are known to target local officials to consolidate their status in communities.

UK Anti-Corruption Plan, December 2014

The NCA's Economic Crime Command also has a responsibility in respect of anti-bribery and anti-corruption. It is working with the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre to raise awareness in this area and recommends a policy of zero tolerance to bribery and corruption, which should be endorsed by the chief executive, sound whistleblowing procedures and awareness training. The NCA also recommends reflecting the commitment in all relevant policies.

The Public Sector Fraud Response

The Cabinet Office published Tackling Fraud and Error in Government: a Report of the Fraud, Error and Debt Taskforce in 2012. That report set out an ambitious but focused delivery programme that sought to reduce levels of fraud and error across government.

In his foreword, The Rt. Hon. Francis Maude wrote: “We must continue to work together to support the national fraud strategy Fighting Fraud Together, and demonstrate the significant financial benefits that can be made in reducing the harm of fraud and error in the public sector.”

The Fraud, Error and Debt Taskforce was established under the 2010 to 2015 Conservative and Liberal Democrat coalition government, and was the strategic decision-making body for all fraud and error, debt and grant efficiency initiatives across government.

It met 6 times a year and included ministers, senior officials from relevant government departments, and experts from the private sector and the wider public sector. As a result of its work, this government is putting in place a fraud, error, debt and grants function and is reviewing associated groups.

As a result of the Taskforce’s work, central government is driving ahead with a broad agenda of activity on fraud, error, debt and grants. This include the roll out of the Debt Market Integrator, a new way of collecting public sector debt and developing capability across central government in countering fraud through the development of government standards for counter fraud work. It also includes projects to enhance the use of data analytics across government and increasing the efficiency and effectiveness of government grant

The National Fraud Initiative (NFI), an exercise that matches electronic data within and between public and private sector bodies to prevent and detect fraud, is now under the control of the Cabinet Office. The NFI team continues to carry out data matching work with local authorities.

Fighting Fraud Locally 2011

Fighting Fraud Locally, published in 2011, was the first counter fraud strategy for local authorities. It set out the challenges facing local authorities and the response required, noting the good work already carried out and proposing action to overcome the barriers to further progress.

The initiative was supported and hosted by the National Fraud Authority (NFA), which led engagement with local authorities through an independent board on which stakeholders such as the Local Government Association, the Department for Communities and Local Government, and counter fraud experts working in local authorities were represented.

As a result of Fighting Fraud Locally, local authorities and central government undertook many activities. The DCLG set up working groups to look at the areas raised by local government as barriers. Local authorities took part in around 34 pilots set by the NFA, an annual conference was set up, and an awards regime was established which eventually grew to include the whole public sector.

The NFA undertook an extensive engagement campaign with a national roadshow and events to publicise the work and garner support. It engaged CIPFA to provide a survey on FFL actions which began in 2012, and commissioned free tools and guides under the banner of FFL.

Following the abolition of the NFA in March 2014, most of its work was transferred into the National Crime Agency. Overseeing the delivery of the action plan associated with Fighting Fraud Locally remained the responsibility of the independent board. In October 2014, the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA), which was already providing pro bono support by hosting the Fighting Fraud Locally web pages and providing several guides and tools, was asked by the independent board to take over the secretariat and begin research for the next iteration of the strategy.

The CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre now hosts Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally, manages the secretariat and holds the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Good Practice Bank.

Police Resources

Local authorities collaborate with the Police where appropriate. The law enforcement response to fraud is led by the City of London Police, which is the national lead force for fraud. The City of London Police runs Action Fraud, the national reporting service for fraud and cyber-crime.

It is not only local authorities that are affected by changes in the landscape and a reduction in resources due to the need to curb public expenditure: other enforcement agencies are also facing reductions. It is the view of local authorities that police will have reduced resources to support local authorities on tackling local authority led fraud.

Local authorities will therefore need to consider how they can achieve the results necessary by reconfiguring their approach to enforcement

Whistle-blowing Arrangements

The best fraud fighters are the staff and clients of local authorities. To ensure that they are supported to do the right thing a comprehensive, management-led, anti-fraud and corruption culture needs to be maintained, including clear whistle-blowing arrangements.

These arrangements should ensure that staff and the public have access to a fraud and corruption whistle-blowing helpline, and should be kept under review.

The terms should conform to the British Standards Institute 2008 Whistle-blowing Arrangements Code of Practice as updated within the Code of Practice published in 2013 by the Whistle-blowing Commission set up by Public Concern at Work.

The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, also recently published Whistle-blowing Guidance and a Code of Practice (March 2015) this helps employer's understand the law relating to whistle-blowing and provides practical advice for putting in place a robust whistle-blowing policy .

The NAO is available as a prescribed body to take calls from whistle-blowers and the NAO has good practice on its website.

Whistleblowing arrangements help to provide employees of public bodies, and users of public services with confidence that wrongdoing or the misuse of public funds can be investigated by an independent and impartial party. This is all the more important where services are subject to considerable change and innovative ways of delivering those services are adopted.

The Head of the National Audit Office is a prescribed person for central government, and from 1 April will also be a prescribed person for local government – we take our responsibilities to provide an impartial and objective service extremely seriously, and draw on the lessons learned from our wider work, to support those who make reports to us.”

Sue Higgins

Executive Leader, National Audit Office

The Transparency Code

DCLG published The Transparency Code on 31 October 2014. The aim is to strengthen transparency within local government. It also affords the opportunity for residents to see how money is spent. The section in respect of local authorities is also referred to in the UK Anti-Corruption Plan as an aid to making anti-corruption issues more transparent.

The Code sets out requirements for local authorities to report on their counter fraud work:

The Code legally requires local authorities to publish annually details of their counter fraud work, including information about the number of occasions they use powers to obtain information from specified bodies to help investigate cases of fraud, the number of staff investigating fraud cases and the number of fraud cases they have investigated.

Specifically, local authorities must publish the following information about their counter fraud work:

- number of occasions they use powers under The Prevention of Social Housing Fraud (Power to Require Information) (England) Regulations 2014, or similar powers
- total number (absolute and full time equivalent) of employees undertaking investigations and prosecutions of fraud
- total number (absolute and full time equivalent) of professionally accredited counter fraud specialists
- total amount spent by the authority on the investigation and prosecution of fraud, and
- total number of fraud cases investigated.

The Code also recommends that local authorities publish details about the number of cases where fraud and irregularity has been identified and the monetary value for both categories that has been detected and recovered.

The above is an extract from the UK Anti Corruption Plan

Issues Raised Directly By Stakeholders

In addition to considering relevant policy and academic research, the foundations for this strategy were researched through a series of workshops, surveys, and face to face individual meetings.

There were many instances of good practice, collaborative working and examples of innovative use of data provided by participants.

Local authorities reported issues in the following areas:

Counter Fraud Capacity

Many local authority practitioners reported that the capacity to tackle fraud and corruption was likely to be reduced, or had already been reduced, as a result of austerity-related local authority funding reductions.

In many cases practitioners also reported that the skilled investigation resource transferred to the Department for Work and Pensions Single Fraud Investigation Service (SFIS) had not been replaced, and some stated that after the SFIS transfer their authority would have no fraud team.

Skills

Local authorities reported that their staff did not always have the skills or training to tackle fraud and corruption. Some local authorities stated that they would recruit new staff or transfer staff into fraud-related work post SFIS, but raised the concern that they did not have budgets to train their staff to tackle new areas.

Culture

Some local authority practitioners reported that senior managers were finding it difficult to dedicate sufficient time to demonstrate their support for counter fraud activities due to the focus being on other priorities such as meeting budget savings targets and maintaining key services to residents.

This was considered to have a negative effect upon performance, and was associated with counter fraud work having a low profile and the benefits of counter fraud work not being fully appreciated.

Collaboration

Local authority practitioners demonstrated an appetite for working more formally across local authority boundaries and with other agencies, departments, and the private sector; but reported a range of difficulties in securing progress.

Some examples of this were: counter fraud work not being consistently prioritised; lack of financial incentives to make the business case; a lack of understanding of data protection rules; and lack of funding.

They also reported an appetite for innovative use of data and wider data sharing, but had encountered barriers to this or made very slow progress.

Local authorities further reported that they found it hard to obtain police involvement in their cases and that they did not receive feedback on cases from crime reporting hotlines.

“In times of austerity, collaboration is key. It is of increasing importance to consolidate the approach to fighting fraud and corruption across public services to better inform strategies and to gain a more comprehensive picture of the fraud landscape. We have created CIPFA’s Counter Fraud Centre to lead on creating a coordinated approach, as well as offering thought leadership and to fill the gaps led by others.”

Fraud is a pointless drain on resources emphasised by the need for local authorities to save every penny, but we are committed to helping authorities work together to tackle fraudulent activity, protecting the public pound.

Rob Whiteman, CEO CIPFA

Types of Fraud

Local authorities reported a wide range of fraud types. The main areas of fraud that were reported in Fighting Fraud Locally 2011 continue to feature as significant risks. However, there are also new fraud types emerging and some of these are more prevalent in particular parts of the country. It is clear that a one size fits all approach is not appropriate: local authorities will need to tailor their approach to their particular fraud risks.

Known Fraud Risks Remaining Significant

Tenancy – Fraudulent applications for housing or successions of tenancy, and subletting of the property.

Procurement – Tendering issues, split contracts, double invoicing.

Payroll – False employees, overtime claims, expenses.

Council tax – Discounts and exemptions, council tax support.

Blue Badge – Use of counterfeit/altered badges, use when disabled person is not in the vehicle, use of a deceased person's Blue Badge, badges issued to institutions being misused by employees.

Grants – Work not carried out, funds diverted, ineligibility not declared.

Pensions – Deceased pensioner, overpayments, entitlement overstated.

Schools – Procurement fraud, payroll fraud, internal fraud.

Personal budgets – Overstatement of needs through false declaration, multiple claims across authorities, third party abuse, posthumous continuation of claim.

Internal fraud – Diverting council monies to a personal account; accepting bribes; stealing cash; misallocating social housing for personal gain; working elsewhere while claiming to be off sick; false overtime claims; selling council property for personal gain; wrongfully claiming benefit while working.

Identity fraud – False identity / fictitious persons applying for services / payments.

Emerging / Increasing Fraud Risks

Business rates – Fraudulent applications for exemptions and reliefs, unlisted properties.

Right to buy – Fraudulent applications under the right to buy/acquire.

Money laundering – Exposure to suspect transactions.

Insurance Fraud – False claims including slips and trips.

Disabled Facility Grants – Fraudulent applications for adaptations to homes aimed at the disabled.

Concessionary travel schemes – Use of concession by ineligible person, including Freedom Passes.

No recourse to public funds – Fraudulent claim of eligibility.

New Responsibilities – Areas that have transferred to local authority responsibility e.g. Public Health grants, contracts.

Commissioning of services – Including joint commissioning, third sector partnerships – conflicts of interest, collusion.

Local Enterprise Partnerships – Voluntary partnerships between local authorities and businesses. Procurement fraud, grant fraud.

Immigration – Including sham marriages. False entitlement to services and payments.

Cyber dependent crime and cyber enabled fraud – Enables a range of fraud types resulting in diversion of funds, creation of false applications for services and payments.

Though uncommon, incidents of electoral fraud in the UK undermine wider public confidence in the electoral process and trust in the outcome of elections. Fraudulent electoral registration may also be linked to other types of financial or benefit fraud.

Electoral Registration Officers (EROs) and Returning Officers (ROs) are uniquely placed to identify incidents and patterns of activity that might indicate electoral fraud. In line with Electoral Commission guidance they should ensure mechanisms are in place to assess the risks and monitor indicators of possible electoral fraud.

It is essential that local authorities work in partnership with the police on any issues around registration and the planning for elections and share information relevant to identifying and preventing electoral fraud.

The ERO/RO should be in touch with the relevant police force's Single Point of Contact (SPOC) for electoral matters and agree the division of responsibilities and the approach for the ERO/RO to refer allegations of electoral fraud to the police where appropriate.

The police are responsible for investigating allegations of electoral fraud and should keep the ERO/RO informed of the progress of cases.

The Electoral Commission has identified 17 local authority areas in the UK which have a higher risk of allegations of electoral fraud, where it recommended a sustained approach to tackle the risks. It is essential that the EROs and ROs for those areas maintain their focus on electoral fraud prevention.

The Government is completing the roll-out of individual electoral registration across Great Britain, which will help reduce the scope for fraud.

The individual nature of the new registration system, in combination with increased assurance of the identity of applicants, means that the register now has greater value as a tool for local authorities and the police to aid in the prevention and detection of crime, including other forms of fraud.

Powers

In Fighting Fraud Locally 2011, local authorities reported that they did not have sufficient powers to tackle non benefit fraud and cited examples of this across their counter fraud activities. In the area of social housing fraud, the Department for Communities and Local Government dedicated resource to improving this situation and, in October 2013, The Prevention of Social Housing Fraud Act was introduced which enabled local authorities to acquire information by using new powers.

However, local authorities are still reporting that they do not have sufficient powers to tackle non benefit fraud. For example, local authorities reported having difficulty obtaining evidence from suppliers in procurement fraud investigations.

Further action is required to ensure that local authorities are able to deal with fraud effectively in all areas of their business.

Good Practice Case study – Manchester City Council

Manchester was awarded DCLG tenancy fraud funding to work in partnership with Registered Social Landlords in the area including:

- Review their tenancy fraud processes and procedures
- Produce a tenancy fraud publicity toolkit containing template leaflets and posters
- Develop capacity through delivery of training packages to enable partners to: identify tenancy fraud; gather evidence in compliance with CPIA 1996;
- Provide PACE awareness training enabling social housing staff to work alongside the council counter fraud specialists.

Kate Sullivan, Tenancy Enforcement and Support Manager at Adactus Housing said:

“The Fraud Investigations team has assisted Adactus with complex investigations and has worked with us to create the environment of a true partnership. The investigations they have carried out have been in cases where, prior to the project, we had drawn a blank and had been unable to gather meaningful evidence to proceed with a case.

The team has welcomed an Adactus member of staff to shadow its officers, which has been a valuable learning opportunity for my team member and given an understanding on both sides of the constraints both teams face.”

Barriers to Information Sharing

In Fighting Fraud Locally 2011, local authorities expressed frustration that they had difficulty obtaining information from government agencies and departments as well as from internal colleagues. They also provided examples of instances where they were not permitted to share data, even to tackle fraud.

A number of local authorities that subsequently set up hubs to collaborate and share information in line with recommendations in Fighting Fraud Locally 2011 experienced difficulties over exchanging data and, even where they did not have difficulty, processes were lengthy. Without exception, at every workshop during research, this issue was raised; across different types of fraud and across different agencies.

Incentives

During the development of Fighting Fraud Locally 2011, DCLG took on board issues raised about housing tenancy fraud and an incentive fund was created. Two tranches of funding were made available in 2009 and 2011 and the last tranche in 2015. This funding has enabled local authorities to set up bespoke counter fraud teams and to undertake data matching and other innovative measures.

Local authorities report that once this stream of funding expires, however, they will not be able to sustain activity in this area. The reason for this is that stopping a housing tenancy fraud rarely provides a cashable saving (tenants sub-letting their property are almost always very good rent payers) and it is difficult to identify sufficient financial benefit to support the business case to undertake counter fraud activity.

In December 2014, DCLG made available a one-off Counter Fraud Fund of £16m to support local authorities in tackling fraud in the period during which the SFIS is due to be implemented.

Councils need central government to set in place the right legal and financial frameworks so that they can tackle fraud and corruption effectively. This strategy offers the opportunity for central government to work with councils in protecting the public purse by providing appropriate powers, removing barriers to information sharing across government, and by providing the right financial incentives for councils to tackle fraud and removing disincentives. Councils should not be expected to fight fraud with one hand tied behind their back.”

Ian O'Donnell

Executive Director of Corporate Resources,
London Borough of Ealing

This fund received bids totalling around £36m, which included innovative ideas and proposed joint working across local authorities, central government and with private sector providers.

Many of the outcomes of this work will be seen during the period of this strategy. The interest and appetite for this initiative on the part of local authorities has not only resulted in many good proposals and mechanisms being put forward, but signals their strong commitment and goodwill to continue to tackle fraud.

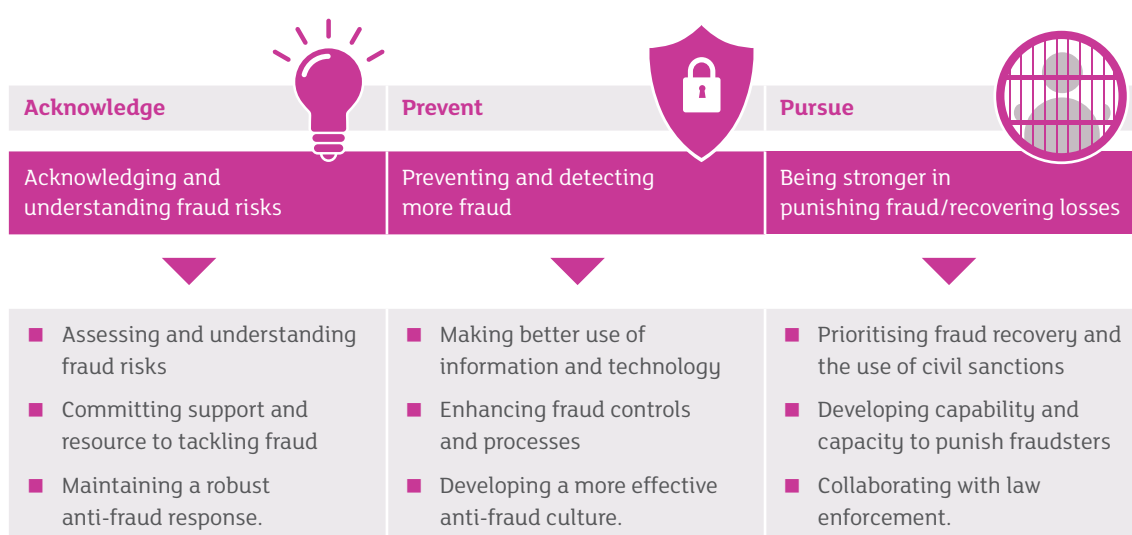

Local authorities are still reporting that, apart from these one-off funds, it remains difficult to access funding to tackle fraud. The business case is often not clear cut, which makes it difficult for local authorities to fund initiatives on an invest-to-save basis, and in some instances the business case is frustrated by existing local government funding mechanisms.

Section 2: The Strategic Response

The principles of the strategic response to fighting fraud in local authorities remain unchanged from Fighting Fraud Locally 2011. These are set out in the first section below.

The Principles - Acknowledge, Prevent and Pursue

Fighting Fraud Locally official NFA Board Slides

The changing context in which local government services are delivered, the increasing risk of fraud by motivated offenders, reduced local authority resources and associated changes to existing local control frameworks together create a pressing need for a new approach to tackling fraud perpetrated against local government.

Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally recognises these challenges and the need for a cost effective way to reduce fraud. This strategy calls for a greater emphasis on prevention and the recovery of stolen money and highlights the need to create new arrangements to ensure that local authorities retain a resilient response to fraud based on the sharing of services and specialist resources.

Strong leadership will be required in order to achieve this, with greater use of technology and a stronger emphasis on collaboration. The starting point of the strategic response is to acknowledge the threat of fraud and the opportunities for protecting the public purse that exist. This acknowledgement must start at the top and lead to action.

While this document outlines the main areas of fraud risk across local government, each authority's risk profile will be different.

This strategy recommends that the starting point for each local authority is to perform its own risk assessment and fraud resilience check.

The second element of the strategy focuses on prevention. With investigative and police resources facing budget pressures, a counter fraud and anti-corruption strategy can no longer depend on enforcement activity.

Prevention is often the most efficient way to make savings and so what is called for is a radical realignment of counter fraud resources with greater investment in techniques, technology and approaches that will prevent fraud and corruption.

Stopping fraud and corruption from happening in the first place must be our aim. However, those who keep on trying may still succeed. A robust enforcement response is therefore needed to pursue fraudsters and deter others.

Fraud is an acquisitive crime and the best way to deter offenders is to ensure that they are caught and do not profit from their illegal acts.

This strategy argues for a fundamental shift in culture to emphasise civil recovery and the more rigorous pursuit of losses.

Turning Strategy into Action

The Themes – Six Cs

The Companion to this strategy document sets out more information on how local authorities can ensure that their counter fraud response is comprehensive and effective.

Local authorities should consider their performance against each of the six themes that emerged from the research conducted.

These are:

- Culture – creating a culture in which beating fraud and corruption is part of daily business
- Capability – ensuring that the range of counter fraud measures deployed is appropriate to the range of fraud risks
- Capacity – deploying the right level of resources to deal with the level of fraud risk
- Competence – having the right skills and standards
- Communication – raising awareness, deterring fraudsters, sharing information, celebrating successes
- Collaboration – working together across internal and external boundaries: with colleagues, with other local authorities, and with other agencies; sharing resources, skills and learning, good practice and innovation, and information.

The Companion contains a section on each of these, with information on good practice and case studies to assist local authorities in strengthening their response and ensuring that it is fit for purpose.

Fraud knows no boundaries – London Borough of Lewisham

A former housing officer who fraudulently hijacked the tenancy of a dead Lewisham tenant was ordered by the court to pay £74,000 after Lewisham Council was granted a compensation order. At an earlier court hearing, the housing officer had received a 21-month prison sentence while her husband had received a 12-month suspended prison sentence and was ordered to conduct 100 hours of unpaid community work.

Following the death of the original tenant in 2005, the tenancy officer had manipulated the council's records to take control of the property in Catford which she then sublet at a profit. The fraud was uncovered in 2009 after Lewisham Homes, the council's arm's length management organisation (ALMO) conducted a visit to the property as part of a tenancy-checking verification program and found that the original tenant was no longer resident.

Further checks by the council's fraud team revealed that a different person from the tenant was listed as liable for Council Tax at the property.

The housing officer and her husband had also provided false information to secure a tenancy in another borough fraudulently, which they also sublet to another tenant for a higher rent.

It is estimated that the actions of the rogue housing officer resulted in a combined loss of approximately £150,000 to the public purse.

Areas of Focus

There are seven areas where a shift in activity will result in long term, sustainable improvement:

1. Leadership

Showing leadership: elected members, chief executives, finance directors and all those charged with governance should demonstrate explicit commitment to fighting fraud and corruption, and provide the necessary leadership.

Counter fraud practitioners cannot operate effectively unless those at the top in local authorities champion counter fraud and corruption work and visibly promote the message that fraud and corruption will not be tolerated.

Culture: those at the top in local authorities should maintain a robust counter fraud and corruption culture with clear values and standards. Culture fundamentally affects all elements of counter fraud and corruption activity: prevention, detection, deterrence, investigation, sanctions and redress.

A key element is having sound whistle-blowing arrangements; communicating how to report fraud and corruption and creating an environment in which reports can be made without the fear of recrimination.

Collaboration and co-ordination: those at the top in local authorities should actively seek to co-ordinate their efforts in the fight against fraud and corruption. Local authorities should seek to break down barriers to collaboration and sharing with other local authorities, central government and other organisations.

Communication: having a robust communication policy, actively publicising initiatives and celebrating successes is integral to having an effective counter fraud culture as a visible demonstration of commitment and values.

2. Assessing and understanding the scope of fraud and corruption risks

Assessing risks: In order to continue to function effectively in a changing landscape post SFIS implementation, and to take account of the recommendations in the UK Anti-Corruption Plan, local authorities will need to make an assessment of their risks.

This will require an honest appraisal of risks and the resources required to tackle them and whether that can be done locally, with the support of the national agencies, or with neighbouring authorities.

Measuring potential and actual losses: local authorities should measure potential and actual losses on a regular basis in order to understand the scope of the challenge, assess the response required, and measure performance.

The impact of crime is not only financial: losses suffered from fraud can have a direct, adverse impact on those people who are in most need of support, and in some cases the reputational damage caused to a local authority can be serious and lasting.

Horizon scanning: in the fast-changing local authority landscape, local authorities should scan the horizon constantly for emerging risks. The Companion to this document details new and changing fraud areas that local authorities reported in the research for this strategy.

However, it is important that local authorities approach this task individually, as some risks are particular to individual local authorities (e.g. districts and counties face different risks), and some fraud risks differ geographically.

3. Making the business case

Investing in counter fraud activity: local authorities should pursue opportunities to invest in counter fraud and corruption activity in order to generate savings by preventing and recovering losses. Local authorities do not, as a rule explicitly budget for fraud losses (the exception to this is housing benefit, where subsidy losses are budgeted for). However, estimates of local authority losses demonstrate that there is a significant problem, and therefore a significant opportunity for local authorities.

Local authorities should seek to assess their potential losses and measure actual losses in order to make the business case for investing in prevention and detection. In many cases there is an existing business case based upon the experience of other local authorities. For example, the prevention and detection of fraud perpetrated in income areas such as council tax is now widespread and offers higher tax revenue which can be recovered through existing, efficient collection systems.

However, each local authority will need to make its own case as fraud risks will vary significantly depending on location, scope, and scale of activities.

Fighting fraud and corruption is not only a financial issue: fraud and corruption in local authorities are unacceptable crimes that attack funds meant for public services or public assets.

The result is that those in genuine need are deprived of vital services. Fraud and corruption are often linked with other criminal offences such as money laundering and drug dealing. Local authorities have a duty to protect the public purse and ensure that every penny of their funding is spent on providing local services. More often than not, in doing so they are achieving wider benefits for the community.

Preventing losses: local authorities should set in place controls that will prevent fraudsters from accessing services and employment. It is nearly always more cost-effective to prevent fraud than to suffer the losses or investigate after the event.

The technology to establish identity, check documents, and cross-check records is becoming cheaper and more widely used. Controls should apply to potential employees as well as service users – e.g. if someone lies about their employment history to obtain a job they are dishonest and it may not be appropriate to entrust them with public funds, and in any case they may not have the training or qualifications to perform the job to the required standard.

Recovering financial losses: prompt and efficient recovery of losses is an essential component in the fight against fraud and corruption. In some cases local authorities can make use of their own income collection systems to recover losses – e.g. council tax, business rates, and housing benefits. In others, local authorities will need to make use of civil and criminal courts.

The Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 remains a powerful tool for local authorities; however, local authorities should strike the right balance, making the business case for prosecutions but not setting unachievable financial targets. Local authorities should continue to work with the courts to improve the speed of processing and develop case law supporting the successful application of recovery powers.

4. Using resources more effectively

Using the right resources: local authorities should make use of the right number of properly skilled counter fraud and corruption staff, adopt best practice standards, make use of tools and technology, and generate economies of scale through collaboration.

In a changing environment where resources are limited, where fraud types are constantly changing and where staff may be moving roles, it will be vital to ensure that these resources are kept up to date and that the response remains proportional to the threat.

Professional competence: post SFIS, it will be ever more important to have a common set of standards for those working in counter fraud and for them to have proper training and an understanding of the whole picture within counter fraud.

Fighting Fraud Locally 2011 recommended professionally accredited training. A vital element of any effective counter fraud strategy is the ability of the organisation to call upon competent, professionally accredited counter fraud specialists trained to the highest possible professional standards to investigate suspected fraud.

Local authorities need to be confident that evidence has been lawfully obtained and professionally presented, regardless of whether the anticipated outcome of an investigation is a disciplinary hearing, civil action or criminal proceedings.

5. Collaborating to improve

Sharing resources: in the context of budget reductions and post SFIS many local authorities are faced with reduced counter fraud and corruption resources. Sharing resources and information can help mitigate the risks by ensuring that the response remains proportional and is properly skilled and equipped.

Working together: fraudsters do not respect boundaries of any type – they attack neighbouring local authorities, other agencies and commit other frauds. By working across boundaries local authorities will be better placed to detect the range of fraudulent activity carried out by individuals and gangs.

Local authorities already work with other agencies; the creation of multiple intelligence, data and investigative hubs opens up further opportunities to link up with other local counter fraud agencies – e.g. NHS Local Counter Fraud Specialists.

There are often links between frauds against local authorities and benefit frauds, immigration offences and shadow economy tax evasion, and there are already many examples of good practice and joint working where local authorities work in collaboration with local police, HMRC, DWP or other agencies. Some local authorities even have police officers seconded and physically located in the authority, while others have access to officers from other enforcement agencies, for example UK Visas and Immigration or Immigration Enforcement and as a result, are more able to detect and investigate fraud.

Local authorities should collaborate with law enforcement partners to understand and mitigate the risks of organised and serious frauds, raise awareness of the tactics used by organised criminals and where possible share fraud data to help prevent future frauds. And where possible share fraud data to help prevent future frauds. Where police investigative support into fraud is required, the fraud must be recorded with Action Fraud.

6. Using technology to tackle fraud

Birmingham City Council Case Study – The value of data

Birmingham City Council makes extensive use of its data warehouse to identify fraud through data matching and data mining. By expanding the data warehouse to hold not only the Council's data, but that of neighbouring authorities and partner organisations, the Council has greatly enhanced its data analysis capability. The facility has now been embedded into frontline housing services to enable users to validate information provided on application forms at the point of receipt.

This provides greater assurance that housing tenancies are being awarded only to those in genuine need and that homes are only sold to those who are genuinely entitled to buy them. Furthermore, it has helped to identify former tenancy arrears of tenants who have been re-housed elsewhere, thereby helping in the collection of those debts.

Data sharing: for many years local authorities have funded and participated in the National Fraud Initiative (NFI); a periodic data matching exercise that identifies potential fraud cases for local authorities to investigate. Local authorities are now pursuing further opportunities to use their data to prevent and detect fraud, taking advantage of changes in technology and in the appetite of other organisations to collaborate.

These include advanced data analytics, the availability of third party data, and channel shift within local authorities towards online customer contact. Data hubs offer a huge opportunity to work with and inform the wider counter fraud landscape, feeding into the work of the NCA and the Home Office and connecting into the wider architecture of other hubs.

Prevention: local authorities are using new technology to prevent fraud. The availability of relevant data when an application is made for local authority services can prevent fraudsters from obtaining access. Identity can be verified quickly and efficiently.

Technology is being used to check the validity of official documents, such as passports, with the originating government department, and is also being used to generate intelligence alerts, warning local authorities of fraud risks so that a proportional response can be set in place. Local authorities should continue to invest in technology that assists in preventing fraud and corruption.

Sharing good practice: local authorities should make use of good practice to achieve the best results. Within this strategy are examples of a number of local authorities that have begun to do this. The Companion to this strategy contains a checklist for local authorities, a detailed description of fraud types, and examples of good practice with information on where to find more.

As part of Fighting Fraud Locally 2011, the National Fraud Authority undertook research on good practice, legislation and procedure and produced a number of guides. The original research showed the need for a one stop shop for local authorities for good practice, and the guides, which cover recovery, case building and risks, were placed in the CIPFA Good Practice Bank. A number of local authorities have used these documents and they should now be updated where necessary and publicised anew.

The evidence collected for this new strategy shows that the one stop approach has worked and should be continued. A one stop shop for the whole of the public sector is now provided through the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre website, where the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally page can be accessed free of charge. The London Counter Fraud Partnership has existed since 1998. It is a partnership of all the enforcement agencies involved in tackling fraud in London including local authorities, NHS, Housing Associations and the Metropolitan Police.

This partnership has produced numerous pieces of good practice and fraud prevention documents which are available free within the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre website. The Metropolitan Police runs a webpage that covers trends in fraud including mandate and vishing/phishing scams and measures to prevent fraud including advice and where to get support. A number of other organisations also offer good practice information which can be accessed by local authorities.

Case Study – Dudley Metropolitan Borough Council Code of Practice

Dudley MBC has Codes of Conduct for employees and members which set out the high standards expected of them. These are also intended to relay certain messages to all suppliers as there is a growing expectation that all service providers in local government should adhere to the same principles of being open and transparent when dealing with colleagues, residents and partners.

In developing their Suppliers' Code of Practice they aimed to reinforce good working practices and to stamp out fraud, bribery, corruption and unacceptable business practices. Staff who buy in goods and services on behalf of the authority and all suppliers are required to work to the guidelines in the Code of Practice. All active suppliers have received an email announcing the launch of the Code and showing where the Code is available on the council website. The Code includes useful contacts if people want to report problems to the council and reinforces the availability of a Fraud Hotline operated by Audit Services. Audit Services also intends to approach key suppliers to obtain feedback and ask for written assurance that they comply with the Code.

Dudley MBC's leaflet Beating Fraud is Everyone's Business, which sets out guidelines for employees, managers and members, is available on the CIPFA website.

7. Tackling Corruption

The UK Anti-Corruption Plan requires a response from local authorities. Areas in the plan that local authorities should pay attention to are:

- Working more closely with the NCA and other law enforcement agencies
- Instituting a public awareness campaign
- Putting in place confidential reporting arrangements for whistleblowers and responding effectively to reports of corruption
- Preparing corruption risk assessments across all areas of business
- Procurement and the European Public Procurement Directives in respect of the exclusion of suppliers.

Areas in the plan that are specific to local authorities are:

- The CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre, which will promote measures and provide tools and services to the public sector in this area. The CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre is offering e-learning on anti-corruption and whistle-blowing and health checks on anti-corruption measures
- Funding which has been made available by DCLG to support local authorities' efforts to tackle fraud
- The Transparency Code
- Working more closely with the Home Office in respect of local partnerships and the way in which these interact
- The research, development and publication of Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally.

Section 3: Delivery Plan

Recommendations

General recommendations

1. A working group from local authorities should examine and devise a standard and common methodology for measuring fraud and corruption within local authorities. Once it has been agreed, local authorities should use the standard and common measure of estimated levels of fraud and corruption.
2. A working group from local authorities should be established to look at the area of powers, incentives and information barriers to:
 - Examine areas where barriers exist
 - Gather evidence
 - Look at achieving quick wins
 - Place examples of good practice in the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Good Practice Bank.
3. A working group from local authorities should be established to look at the area of fraud and corruption enablers with a view to preventing more fraud and corruption.
4. There should be an annual report for Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally which will provide more detail of progress and developments in areas like procurement.
5. DCLG should work with local authorities and the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre (which host Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally) to acknowledge good practice and should share useful case studies to ensure that there is an appreciation by central government of achievements at local level.
6. DCLG should give consideration to the provision of future incentives to help local authorities to tackle housing fraud.
7. In relation to procurement fraud, a working group should be established, including subject matter experts and relevant interested parties as well as local authority counter fraud staff, to:
 - Investigate and collate good practice in this area and place this in the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Good Practice Bank

- Create a procurement fraud map and define the stages at which procurement fraud can happen in a local authority: highlighting low, medium and high potential risks, to inform risk awareness training for the future. This should include grant fraud where it crosses over.
- Support the implementation of the UK Anti-Corruption Plan by including corruption in procurement in the procurement fraud map
- Work with the London Counter Fraud Partnership to tailor the guidance they have created to the specific needs of local authorities
- Include in the Powers and Penalties Guide a list of powers and potential sanctions relevant to procurement fraud
- Work with the local authorities that are running pilots in order to learn lessons and communicate them to others
- Explore the possibility of cartels and mechanisms to detect them.

Recommendations for local authorities

8. There should be a structured programme on fraud and corruption awareness for elected members and senior managers.
9. Local authorities should undertake up-to-date fraud and corruption awareness programmes and use the free resources developed by local authorities that are available in the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Good Practice Bank.
10. Local authorities should collaborate where it is appropriate to do so and should place examples of useful outcomes in the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Good Practice Bank and use this as a conduit to exchange information with each other.
11. Local authorities should profile their fraud and corruption risks using the section on risks from the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Companion document as a starting point.
12. Local authorities should ensure that they have the right resources in place by having made an assessment of the risks on fraud and corruption which should be reported to the Audit Committee or similar.

- 13. Senior officers within local authorities should ensure that officers working in the counter fraud team should be provided with appropriate accredited training.
- 14. Senior officers within local authorities should ensure that officers who work in areas where they might encounter fraud and corruption have appropriate training.
- 15. Local authorities should continue to work together on counter fraud hubs or, should investigate the benefits of joining hubs, and should share information where possible to help each other increase resilience to fraud and corruption and establish best practice.
- 16. Local authorities should participate in data technology pilots to improve their efforts to detect and prevent fraud and corruption.
- 17. Local authorities should publicise and celebrate successes. Press stories should be collated on the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Good Practice Bank and, where possible, publicity should be endorsed and promoted by DCLG.
- 18. Local authorities should make an assessment using the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Companion Checklist, increasing awareness of the UK's Anti-Corruption Plan, make themselves aware of NCA advice, ensure that staff are trained on anti-bribery and corruption, and report this to their Audit Committee together with actions to meet the criteria set out in the Plan.
- 19. Local authorities should use the free CIPFA Code of Practice on Managing the Risk of Fraud and Corruption to ensure a common standard.
- 20. Local authorities should make sure that they have in place robust reporting procedures including whistle-blowing and that these include assessment through the BSI or Public Concern at Work and that staff are trained in this area.
- 21. Local authorities that do not have their own housing stock should consider working with their housing partners, in return for nomination rights, to prevent and detect social housing fraud.
- 22. Where appropriate local authorities should consider participating in the Tenancy Fraud Forum.

- 23. Local authorities should work with partners on relevant procurement projects and pilots and disseminate information as appropriate.
- 24. Local authorities should look at insider fraud and consider using the Internal Fraud Database at CIFAS following the London Borough of Ealing pilot.
- 25. Local authorities should horizon scan and explore new areas, e.g. cyber and identity issues and explore new methods to detect fraud, e.g. behavioural insights.
- 26. Local authorities should use the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Companion Checklist to ensure that they have the right counter fraud and anti-corruption measures in place and should report the results of this to their Audit Committee and the External Auditor.

Framework for Delivery

To support the delivery of this strategy appropriate governance arrangements should be set in place to oversee the implementation of recommendations and the maintenance of the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally resources for local authorities.

A board will be established to ensure activity takes place and to provide senior stakeholder support.

The day to day management and hosting of the Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally web page, survey, and secretariat sits with the CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre and is provided on a pro bono basis. This arrangement is working effectively.

Deliverables

The FFCL Board will need to ensure that progress in implementing the recommendations in this strategy is monitored and that an annual report is provided and published setting out what has been achieved and what remains to be done, so that local authorities and other stakeholders have clear visibility of how the strategy has improved outcomes.

Thank you

The Fighting Fraud and Corruption Locally Board is:

- Ian O'Donnell (Chair) – London Borough of Ealing
- Bevis Ingram – LGA
- Andrew Hyatt – Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea
- Simon Lane – Former London Borough of Brent
- Mike Clarkson – Mazars
- John Baker – Moore Stephens
- Rachael Tiffen – CIPFA Counter Fraud Centre
- Ben Stoneman – DCLG
- Nick Pellegrini – DCLG

The development of this strategy was overseen by a task and finish group commissioned by the board, whose members were:

- Charlie Adan – Chief Executive, Barbergh and Mid Suffolk District Council
- Ian O'Donnell (Chair) – Executive Director of Corporate Resources, London Borough of Ealing
- Bevis Ingram – Senior Adviser, Finance, LGA
- Ben Stoneman – DCLG
- Nick Pellegrini – DCLG
